

Out and about in Stuttgart

The Television tower

You start at the PGH. There you go the Paracelsus street straight on to the Plieninger sheaf. On the bus stop you take the 70 bus to the Ruhbank Televisiontower station. On the last station you get out. There you go into the Georgiway. At the first cross you turn right in the Guts-Muths-way. At last you turn right and then you see the television tower. Up there you have a beautiful view over Stuttgart. It cost per people, adult 17.50 euro, kid 8.50 euro. At the moment it close.

The royal building

You start at the television tower. Then you go back to the Ruhbank Televisiontower station. There you take the rail U7 to Ostfildern. You get out on the Palace Square station. When you up here you see the royal building. There you can shopping. It isn't cost sth. On all days out of Sunday it's open at ten o'clock to twenty 8 pm. Sunday it is close.

The Old Castle

You start at the royal building. There you go to the Hohenheimer street there you go left and then you can see the old castle. On Tuesday and Wednesday it's open at ten o'clock to 5 pm. On Friday to Sunday it's open at ten o'clock to 8 pm. Monday it's close. It don't cost sth. That's are donate. In the old castle can you look exhibitions.

The State Gallery

You start at the old castle. Then you go back to the Hohenheimer street and there you go right. On the cross you go to the train station Charlottenplatz you take the U1 to Fellbach. You get out at the next station Staatsgalerie station. There you go the Konrad-Adenauer-street bit meter back and you can see the state gallery. On Monday it's close. On the other days it's open at ten o'clock to 8 pm. It cost 7 euro/5 euro. There you can look pictures.

The city library

You start at the Sate Gallery. There you go back to the train station State Gallery. You There you take the U14 to Central Station. On the next station you get out and you take the U7 to Mönchfeld. Then on the next station you get out. Then you can see the city library. It don't cost sth. At the moment it close. There you can read books or you can borrow books.

The Wilhelma

You start at the city library. There you go back to the train station. You take the U7 to Nellingen Ostfildern and get out at the next station. Then you take the U14 to Mühlhausen. On the station Wilhelma you get out. Now you can see the Wilhelma. There you can look animals. It cost per people adult 15 euro kid 5.50 euro student 13 euro. At the moment it is close.